A Big [illegible] Spoiled

Philadelphia, Nov 5—John Carlem has been arrested in this city charged with negotiating Erie City Water Works bonds. He is said to have been a participant in a wholesale scheme to flood the country with spurious bonds of the New York Central, Western Union and Buffalo and Erie railroads.

Ulcerated Again

New York, Nov 5—At a business meeting at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, last evening, the names of Deacon West and Mrs. Moulton were dropped from the roll of membership on the ground of continued absence from service of the church. Deacon West was not present. Roger A. Pryor read a protest signed by Mrs. Moulton and which closed [illegible] enforced [illegible] committed by Henry Ward Beecher, pastor of this church, with one of his parishioners, which I know to be a fact through Beecher's confessions to me and through confessions of Mrs Tilton and through conclusive [illegible]. I appear before this church in loyal obedience to the summons [illegible] received, and I hereby declare my [illegible] and desire to discharge all duties devolving on me as a member that are consistent with the knowledge of the adultery of the pastor and his false swearing in regard to it.

New York, Nov 5—The New York and Brooklyn Association of Congregational ministers has taken, it is alleged, [illegible] which will certainly result [illegible] committee of its members [illegible] instructed to report [illegible] examination of the charges whether [illegible] to retain Beecher in membership. It was said last evening Beecher would withdraw from [illegible] rather than submit to the [illegible].

Moody and Sankey

New York, Nov 5—There is a perceptible falling off in the attendance at Moody and Sankey's prayer meetings held in Talmage's tabernacle every morning. The decreased attendance was accounted for by the election on Wednesday, by anxiety to know the result of it, and on Thursday by rain. To-day there is neither election anxiety [illegible] the smallest attendance [illegible].

A Church Wishes to Help the Good Work

[illegible] A Church has adopted a resolution, proposed by Beecher and his deacons, calling with Mr Moody, and that they be authorized, if the evangelist make no objection, to announce the first series of prayer meetings daily for next Monday. In the debate on this subject one member said [illegible] enough of Christian spirit to go with others in this in the tabernacle. Let us show no desire to stand aloof from sister churches [illegible] they may not feel cordial toward us.

Spain Fears Intervention.

New York, Nov 5—The Spanish government has forwarded to their agents in this city orders to buy upon and ship at once provisions and ammunition to the amount of $300 000. The money for this purpose was carried and in Havana on the 20th ult, upon receipt of telegrams from Madrid to the effect that American intervention was feared and that all that could be done to deter it was advisable.

A Terrible Crime.

Chicago, Nov 5—A Logansport (Ind) special says: Last night David Robinson, six miles from [illegible], deliberately attempted the murder of his family, first by shooting and killing [illegible], then firing at his wife, but missing her. The making her escape gave the alarm, [illegible] then shot and killed a second child and wounded a third in the face, who made [illegible] Robinson nearly severed the children's heads from its body and [illegible]. Neighbors aroused by the wife, [illegible] and immediate pursuit was made in all directions. The body of Robinson was found by the side of the track of the Indianapolis, [illegible] and Chicago railway a few miles [illegible] having evidently met death in attempting to get on or off a moving train. He has [illegible] a quiet peaceable citizen heretofore, and the cause of this sudden frenzy is a mystery.

Notable Death.

[illegible] Paul, Minn., Nov 5—Rev S T McGaster, D.D., rector of Christ church here, well known in the Protestant Episcopal church, died last night after a long and painful sickness.

Legislature [illegible] but the Democrats [illegible] four or five members [illegible] Republican gains [illegible] close.

The crew consisted of ten men [illegible], three of whom were badly [illegible]. The boat took fire, but the flames were [illegible] by the crew.

The Indian Management.

On yesterday he had a [illegible] with Secretary Chandler, Assistant Secretary Cowen, General Sheridan and Crook and the Secretary of War. The military generals, as a matter of course, fully concurred in the opinion of the [illegible] the matter.

Are they Indicted?

Washington, Nov 5—The Attorney General not having been informed officially that Gen Babcock and Orville Grant had been indicted by the St Louis grand jury, it is the opinion of cabinet officials and others here that no such indictments have been found. [illegible] was spoken to on the subject this morning and remarked that he did not care to take any notice of the report unless it should be so.

[illegible] Administration Candidate [illegible]

[illegible] received this morning by the Attorney [illegible] that U S Attorney Wells, administration candidate for Congress in Mississippi [illegible] a majority of 6,000.

Spanish Claims Decided

Washington, Nov 5—M. Barthalde, umpire of the American and Spanish Claims Commission, for the settlement of claims of citizens of the United States against Spain for wrongs and injuries against persons and property on the island of Cuba since the commencement of the present insurrection, has [illegible] submitted to him by the arbitrators [illegible] decisions and awards thereon. Joaquin [illegible], whose property was embargoed in [illegible] and restored in 1873 and 1874, is awarded $748. [illegible] gets $3,000 and in [illegible] days imprisonment. The case of Francisco C. Y[illegible] was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, the case of J M Dougas was dismissed as the proofs show the claimant had not complied with the requirements of the naturalization laws.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Spain and the Church.

Madrid, Nov 5.—The Diario Espanol says the Vatican has sent a note to Madrid which expresses approval of Cardinal Simeoni's conduct regarding the [illegible]. The note insists upon the execution of the concordat, and refuses to recognize the royal placet [illegible] civil war to religious toleration, and [illegible] that the bishop of Urgel be tried by ecclesiastical judges, and not by ordinary tribunals.

Out of the Depths

[illegible] Cowen, of New York, who [illegible] the Russian fleet in the harbor of Sebastopol, has been officially invited by the [illegible] to put in proposals for raising the [illegible] squadron.

The Russian Ambassador Talks Sense to the Sick Man.

Constantinople, Nov 5—General Ignatieff, Russian ambassador, had a long interview with the Sultan [illegible]. He represented to him the maladministration of the country, the discontent of the population, the dilapidation of financial affairs and the consequent urgency of reform.

The Boston Globe reports the sayings of the Boston radical club, which appears to be a successor or offshoot of the old transcendental [illegible]. One of the papers of a "brilliant essayist and profound metaphysician" created great delight. Here is a passage, not by any means the most brilliant:

"Man has denied natural perfection to God, because he has identified nature with his own personality, which is palpably defective to be ascribed to the Deity. Her [illegible] is a dividing force, distinguishing each man from his fellows, giving a grand [illegible] individual development; but [illegible] the consolidated or race-principle it is so far from nature that being really [illegible] of its incidents its inviolate, it is really an impediment to its evolutions."

Read the above extract three or four times forward and backward and then the mind will barely begin to comprehend what is just as clear as mud to the average Bostonian. That's the way common people talk in the Athens of America."—St Paul Press

THE TERRITORIES

The Union Pacific Company will commence the manufacture of steel rails at the Laramie rolling mills next spring.

Eighty four car loads of beef cattle were shipped east from West Las Animas and Kit Carson, Colorado, last week.

An adjourned court martial met at Cheyenne recently for the trial of Capt Cain and Lieut Shultz of the Fourth Infantry.

Two thousand people turned out to see Goldsmith Maid trot against time at Salt Lake the other day. The Maid's best time was 2 21½.

It has been discovered that several white men and women are in the habit of frequenting a Chinese den in Corinne and enjoying the luxury of opium eating.

Judge Whitehead, who with a party of surveyors has been locating a route for a railroad between Cheyenne and Montana, has reached Bozeman, and reports having found a feasible line along the eastern base of the mountains.

Twenty thousand sheep now feed on the Laramie plains. The shipment of wool from Laramie during the past season amounted to nearly 50,000 pounds. The various herds of horses on the plains number about 8 000 head.

A thief approached a Mrs Calclough, shop keeper in Ogden, with a $5 note in his hand and asked her to give him small bills in exchange for it. When she produced her pocket book, which contained $100, the rascal snatched it and ran off, and hasn't been seen since.

There is a reign of robbery and ruffianism in Carbon and Albany counties, Wyoming, and the people have applied to Gov Thayer for protection. The governor has referred the matter to the sheriffs of the counties named with instructions to spare neither effort nor expense to bring all offenders to justice.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "It may be of interest to a large number of young gentlemen and ladies in this city just now to know that there is no marriage law in the Territory. Simply standing up in the presence of your mother in law and saying 'Sal, let's hitch,' or 'Jerusha, let's go pards for life,' constitutes a legal marriage and don't cost a cent."

A big row seemed imminent in Salt Lake last week. A Navajo chief, one of the delegation on a recent visit to Brigham Young, paraded the streets with a woman's scalp dangling to his belt. The scalp was that of a white woman and was lined with flannel and decorated with eagle feathers, the hair being about two feet long. Dr Higgins, a fiery Gentile, whose blood boiled at sight of the trophy of a heartless deed, walked up to the buck and tore the scalp from his belt. The Indians and a party of Mormons with drawn pistols threatened to recapture the trophy, but the Gentiles armed and itching for a fight swarmed about Higgins, when a marshal appeared and ordered the crowd to disperse.

A CHILD BORN TO A MOTHER 76 YEARS OLD.—Truly this is an age of wonders, of [illegible] human [illegible] discoveries and remarkable events, and [illegible] county is [illegible] to be [illegible] a [illegible] place upon the pages of its [illegible] history for the wonderful events which have transpired within her borders. [illegible] of July, Thomas [illegible], who resides three miles south of Smithville in this county, on the road leading from Smithville to Fayette, was born a boy baby on the [illegible] day of September, [illegible] the mother being in her 76th year of her age. The baby weighed eight pounds at its birth and is a hearty, well developed child. Judge Gunn is an old, well known and highly respected citizen of this county and gave us this piece of information from his own lips, which was corroborated by one of his nearest neighbors, who was present at the time and weighed the child. We have known Judge Gunn for several years, having served in the same regiment with him in the late war, and can vouch for the truth of the above.—Liberty (Mo.) Advance

THE FOREST QUEEN.

AN INGENIOUS FICTION

Our readers recollect the appearance in the OREGONIAN some four or five weeks since of a cable dispatch announcing the wreck of the bark Forest Queen from Portland, owned at Port Gamble W T. The Scotsman published at Edinburgh sent us the account of the wreck of the vessel, the sufferings of the crew and the final rescue of those of them who survived. No such vessel ever sailed from this port. There is a vessel named Forest Queen owned at Port Gamble, but she is engaged in the coasting trade and has got along thus far without being wrecked. The story told to the Scotsman and which we give below shows that the writer was familiar with this port and capable of imposing upon almost any one. Here is his narrative:

The bark Forest Queen, John Simmons master, left Portland, Oregon, United States, on the 8th March, with a part cargo of wheat. We dropped down the Columbia river to Oak Point, where we took on board about 800 barrels of salmon and 600 cases of canned salmon, and at Astoria a small deck load of spars. We sailed from Astoria on the 13th of March, the bark then making very little water, and we had very favorable weather while running down the NE trades on the Line calms, and after we crossed Variables, until we got into the SE trades. We made Hermit Island (Cape Horn) sixty two days after leaving Astoria. The following day the wind increased (NE) to a gale. We reduced sail to lower foretopsail and storm staysail. The bark labored a good deal, and began to leak, requiring two hours on each watch at the pumps to get a suck. The gale lasted for about five days, during which time we were driven to the southward considerably. We tried to heave to several times, but found we could not do so with safety. The third day of the gale the deck load shifted, and while we were endeavoring to replace it the captain was jammed between two spars, and died an hour after we got him clear. His back bone was broken; he was crushed almost in two. He was insensible and never spoke. During the gale we lost the foretop mast, maintopgallant mast and flying jibboom, and one boat was stove in by the sea, and a boy named John Carmichael was washed off the poop with the same sea that stove the boat in. The gale broke after the fifth day and we made more sail, but were unable to steer a course. On the weather moderating, however, we repaired damages as much as possible, and, the vessel being then very leaky, the crew asked the mate to put into the Falkland Islands, which he refused to do, saying that the leak would "take up" as soon as we had better weather. We experienced a succession of bad weather until we were in the latitude of the River Plate, when we were struck by a "pampero," which threw the bark on her beam ends, shifting the deck load of spars to leeward, and part of the hold cargo. We tried our best for three days to right her, threw overboard part of the spars at risk of life, several of the hands being badly hurt, and also started 400 barrels of salmon and 500 bags of wheat. On the fourth day the mate told the ship's company that the best thing we could do was to take to the boats, and I got up bread and some canned provisions, and put a considerable quantity in a metallic life boat, also some in a small life boat and the gig. We were obliged to launch the boats to windward on account of the spars being thrashed about on the lee side, and the metallic life boat was stove in, and sank alongside. We tried to get some more provisions up from the lazarette, but it was full of water, and on the 21 of July, at 3.30 P M, we left the vessel, the mate (George Hughes), carpenter (John Hendricksen), cook and five seamen (Dutchmen) in the small lifeboat, and the second mate John Taylor, four seamen, and myself in the gig. In the life boat they had two bags of bread, a case of preserved meat and four breakers of water. In our boat we had about one bag of bread, part of which was uneatable on account of being damaged by salt water, and two breakers (about nine gallons) of water. We made sail (a very heavy sea running), and steered NE. On the fourth day after leaving our vessel we had to reef our sail so as to keep in company with the life boat, as we drew ahead of her while carrying whole sail. It blew very hard on the fourth night, and we were obliged to shake out the reef and keep the boat before the wind to avoid being overtaken by the sea. All hands were occupied in bailing the boat, being frequently half full of water. In the morning we found we had lost sight of the life boat, and it was our opinion that she must have capsized during the night, because she was slow, and had a small sail which did not enable her to keep before the sea. For four days we had very bad weather, and were obliged to keep the boat going free in order to keep her clear of water. Two of the men grumbled a good deal at the second mate because he refused to give them more than the allowance of water—4oz, half a pint a day, which we had agreed to restrict ourselves to, and they made an attempt to get possession of the breaker, but the second mate and myself had to repulse them by violent measures. In the affray one of the men made an attempt to stab the second mate, who was compelled to knock him with a stretcher, and he was insensible for two or three hours. There were, as I have stated, six of us in the boat, but only two of the four resorted to violence, though the other two grumbled a great deal and would probably have assisted the rebellious had they succeeded in mastering us. The boat during the affray was nearly capsized. This took place about two o'clock in the afternoon, and strange to say, almost directly they had eaten the bread and drunk the water we had served out to them. The determination of the mate brought the other man to his bearings and he promised better conduct. The following day on overhauling a small dirty bag which had been thrown into the boat we found a line and some hooks, and there being some bonit (fish) playing about we succeeded in catching one weighing about 7 lb, which was divided into shares, and ate with considerable relish, raw as it was. We tried the next day to catch some more, but could not succeed, owing to the boat having too much way on her. Another dispute took place this day relative to the allowance of bread, one man alleging that his share was so soaked in sea water that it was uneatable. To prevent any further disagreements the second mate arranged that the portions of bread would be placed on a thwart, and one man with his back turned to them should call out who should have each share as it was touched by the second mate or myself. This day we found a few nails in a locker in the stern sheets, and we stretched a piece of canvass clear of the bottom of the boat, which enabled two men to lie down and get a little sleep with some slight degree of comfort, if the word could be properly applied to men in our miserable state. We also divided into two watches, the second mate having charge of one and I of the other. At this time, as nearly as I can judge, we had run about [illegible] miles, steering NE (nearly) the greater part of the time. All of us were in a wretched condition with the sores with which we were covered. Charles [illegible] before he left the vessel [illegible] from the ankle up to the knee. John Hansen [illegible] of the men who fought about the water [illegible] by the other men [illegible] till he had one day's allowance [illegible]. This was on the [illegible] day after leaving the vessel. We were all now getting very weak, and when it fell calm and we had to pull or head on to the sea, one or two were hardly able to hold an oar. A shower of rain fell and we saved a little in the sail, and had an extra allowance in consequence, and we also succeeded in catching another fish, which only weighed about 4 lb, and was hardly a mouthful each. I had the head for my share. John Hansen about this time became delirious and had to be lashed to the bottom of the boat to keep him from jumping overboard. On the fourteenth day we saw a vessel to the NE. We got out the oars and tried to pull, but were all so weak we were unable to make much headway, and as night closed in we lost sight of her. This day we consumed the last food we had. On the following day John Hansen died about meridian. We wrapped the body in a piece of canvas, and put it in the bow of the boat. The fresh water still held out, but on the eighteenth day we almost gave up hope. The second mate and myself took turns at steering, which was harder on account of being obliged to steer with an oar, the rudder having been carried away. That evening the question was seriously debated as to eating a part of the corpse, which was still in the boat and was rapidly decomposing. The following day John Henck, seaman, proposed drawing lots to enable one to die in order to satisfy the hunger of the others. This proposal was not entertained, and in the afternoon we sighted a sail to leeward. We eased off the sheet and ran down to her, and about 7 P M got alongside. We were so weak that we were unable to get up over the side, and some of her hands had to come down into the boat to help us up. The name of the vessel was the Hitterdal, of Arendahl, Norway, from Callao to Stettin, with a cargo of guano. The second mate, who had kept up his spirits till this time, now began to sink fast, and I am sorry to say that he did not receive that attention which his case needed. I applied to the master of the bark for stimulants, &c., which I new his case required, but was refused. On the fifth day after we were picked up the second mate died, after having made an official statement which he gave to the master of the bark. We made Scilly Light on the 14th of September, and on the 17th, being then about 40 miles from Ostend, I got on board a Ramsgate fishing sloop and was landed at Ramsgate on the 23d. The United States consular agent declined to interfere in my case, as the vessel was sailing under the Nicaraguan flag, and I was obliged to walk to Dover, where I was received with every kindness at the Sailors' Home, to the superintendent of which institution, Mr Hatch, I take this means of returning my most sincere thanks for the very hospitable manner he received me. I was forwarded to London by him. The owners of the bark are the Port Gamble Mill Company, Port Gamble, Puget Sound, West Territory, U S A. The bark I do not think was insured; the cargo was.

IMPORTANT LIBEL SUIT—DEFAMATORY AND DAMAGING DENUNCIATIONS—DAMAGES $100,000

[From the Pittsburgh Leader.]

The papers filed this morning in the celebrated O'Dwyer-McKee case, which promises to become even more famous than the Magee-McCarthy mandamus, are as follows:

MICHAEL JOHN O'DWYER vs. J. McKEE } In Common Pleas No. 1 of Allegheny county, December T, 1875.

Issue summons in case sur libel, returnable the first Monday of November next.

ARCHIBALD BLAKELEY,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

October 15 1875

B F KENNEDY, Prothonotary.

Allegheny County, SS

Michael John O'Dwyer complains of J McKee, who has been summoned to answer him of a plea of trespass on the case.

For that whereas, the said Michael John O'Dwyer, for a long time before and at the committing of the grievances by the said J McKee hereinafter mentioned, had been and was, and still is the acknowledged lone, sole, unexcelled grand primo tenor singer of the world, and had from the time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, mouthed, facially expressed, performed, sung, chanted, acted, gesticulated, gestured and warbled the most difficult music, the bitterest satire, the most bewitching love songs, the most mellifluous Irish and other melodies, and the bloodiest war songs of all the great masters and composers of this and all other centuries past, present and to come; that the said plaintiff has executed music before the crowned and uncrowned heads of Europe and America; that the movements of his luscious lips, his wonderful facial expressions and powerful gesticulations alone, without vocalization, make the most perfect picture of unsung music the world has ever seen; while to hear him warble an Irish melody subdues the most obdurate heart and makes two of them beat as one, and his battle songs fire the heart and nerve the arm to noble deeds; and so renowned were these war songs that his majesty the Khedive of Egypt had applied to his Excellency Ulysses S Grant, the President of the United States of America, to take O'Dwyer to Egypt with Major General Joseph E Johnston, to place him on an elevated pedestal in the center of his army to sing war songs to nerve his soldiers to victory; that the wonderful acquirements of the plaintiff had drawn the eyes of the nation upon him, and he had been invited to sing an ode at the centennial of American independence at Philadelphia in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and seventy six, nemine contradicente, while his performances everywhere, in all climes and in all lands, had awakened echoes in many places such as had not been known since the morning stars first sang together, and by his wonderful abilities had made large gains and profits.

Yet the said defendant, well knowing the premises, but contriving and falsely and fraudulently intending to injure the said plaintiff in his said great credit and reputation, and also in his said profession and business, and to cause to be suspected and believed that the said plaintiff was an ass, a cow, a fool, a mad man, and had no voice, and to vex, harass, oppress, impoverish and wholly ruin the said plaintiff, heretofore, to wit, on the 13th day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy five, at Pittsburgh, in the county of Allegheny, aforesaid, wrongfully, maliciously and injuriously composed and published, and caused to be composed and published, a certain false, scandalous, malicious and defamatory libel in a newspaper called the Pittsburgh Daily Dispatch, of and concerning the plaintiff, and of and concerning him in the way of and in respect to his said profession and business, containing amongst other things the false, scandalous, defamatory and libelous matter following, that is to say:

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct 12

TO THE PEOPLE OF PITTSBURGH—Sirs—I happened by chance to be at the court house yesterday; the Lawyers were Amusing them selves hearing O'Dwyer (the said Plaintiff meaning) singing. If this is the man that there is so much talk About (the said plaintiff meaning) ought to have a Free Pass to sing at the Centennial. Fools and Madmen are more recognized these days than wise men. I am no singer. I don't know one Note from the other, But I would rather hear a Cow Bellowing any time as to hear O'Dwyer (the said plaintiff meaning) singing.

By J McKEE.

OREGON

Empire City needs one third more dwelling houses.

Wapato lake is to be drained by a ditch a mile long and five feet deep.

A black bear weighing 600 pounds was killed near Corvallis last week.

The Coos county Record has been moved from Marshfield to Empire City.

The Yamhill is twelve or fifteen feet above low water mark. It is now at a good navigable stage.

The steamer Empire, which had been bar bound at Empire City four weeks, succeeded in getting out a few days ago.

Mr James Montgomery has been appointed assistant teacher in the Cornelius academy by the directors, and will enter upon his duties on the 1st of next month.

The Cordelia left the Coquille for Coos Bay with a cargo of Cedar lumber about a week ago. She probably found the bar too rough and went to San Francisco.

The Glencoe and Scappoose base ball clubs of Washington county have set Saturday, Nov 13th, to play a match game at Scappoose. They play for a purse of $100.

Mr T C Land has shown the Coos Bay News a specimen of ore which comes from the north Coquille. It looks rich in copper, a little gold and perhaps some iron.

The regular meetings of the Board of Land Commissioners for the State of Oregon will hereafter be held on the first Tuesday in February, May, August and November.

Reese Leabo, of Forest Grove, accidentally discharged a shotgun which he was handling carelessly in the house a fortnight since, and the charge went through his hand, mangling it considerably.

The case of James W Welch vs. John M Shively was decided on the 4th by the Board of Land Commissioners in favor of Shively. This case was to settle as to the right to purchase the tide lands fronting the town of Astoria.

Last Sunday the following officers were elected at the M. E. Sunday school in Hillsboro for the ensuing year: Superintendent, E H Warren; assistant superintendent, L. Pattison; librarian and secretary, Miss Anna Wiley.

The Success, the first boat of the season, reached McMinnville last Thursday evening, and loaded at the Commercial mills. She experienced considerable difficulty in making the trip, owing to an insufficiency of water for so large a craft.

The Register says: "Enough Republicans neglected to vote on the day of election in Linn county alone to have turned the scales in favor of Warren. Linn county to-day, on a strict party vote, is Republican, as the next election will prove."

The board of managers of the Oregon State Agricultural Society will meet at the secretary's office in Salem on Thursday, November 30 1875, at 10 A M. The arrangement of the list of premiums for 1876 and other important matters will come before the meeting.

"Young America" stuffed the ballot box at a Sunday-school election in Hillsboro, and on counting the box it was found that some boy had cast about twenty ballots. He will be a great man in American politics if his capabilities as a repeater are properly brought out by cultivation.

Oct 31st about 1 800 logs broke loose from the boom at the mouth of Coos river, and all day long the bay was full of fine logs going to sea on the tide. Noah lost 672 logs from his boom up the river and 300 in a raft near the mouth. Bob McDonald lost between 500 and 600, and the balance of the 1 800 was from the Goodell lot.

Hon A Standard of Linn county informs the Farmer that diphtheria has been very prevalent in the neighborhood of Brownsville, with fatal results in some cases. The family of his brother in law, Harvey Hill, has been in great affliction, two of his children having died the same day and were buried in the same grave.

A Douglas county letter says: "Probably the farmers of this valley were never before suited so well in regard to the weather as they have been for the last two months. They all got their wheat harvested, sold and shipped, without rain, and then had a week of splendid weather to attend the fair, of which a great many availed themselves. On the Monday following the close of the fair it began raining and has kept it up pretty well since."

The Yamhill Reporter of the 4th says: "A little seven year old son of Mr Jas A Yocum came very near being crushed to death yesterday, by a horse falling on him. It seems that the little fellow was riding the horse when it fell, catching the boy between its body and a stone, breaking his left thigh bone in two places, and crushing the flesh in a shocking manner. The little fellow lay unconscious for some time, as he was some distance from any assistance, but finally caught the horse, which was very gentle, made his way to the fence, and, climbing on to the animal's back, rode to the house."

A Coos Bay correspondent of the Farmer says: "A project is on foot to try and secure from Congress an appropriation of money to improve the channel across the Coos Bay bar. The steadily increasing commerce of this bay has reached a point where a larger class of vessels is deemed necessary, and the importance of the interests at stake demand that while congress is lavishing its millions upon other parts of Oregon some little of it should be expended here. A small amount of government aid will make two fine harbors here, within fifteen miles of each other and each opening from a separate valley, and then the coal, timber and ship building interests will make an enormous trade here, which, when connected with the rest of the State by railway, will greatly enhance the wealth of Oregon. There are a good many people in Oregon who would like to know upon what other parts of the State the millions have been lavished."

Fifteen years ago Mr. Alf Wilson, living on the Willamina, had a young pet bear on his premises, which, at the age of about five months, departed from his foster home of civilization, and retired to the abode of its parents, in the mountain fastnesses. About five years ago a bear with a collar on, supposed to be the same one, was seen in the mountains, several miles from Mr Wilson's residence. One day last week, accompanied by some neighbors, Mr. Wilson went out to hunt a bear which had been killing his sheep, and succeeded in killing the animal, which, on examination, proved by the marks on his ears to be the long lost pet bear, which had escaped fifteen years ago.

SATURDAY MORNING NOV 6 1875

HAVE WE GOT TO THE BED ROCK?

For the purpose of showing how nearly the country has got back to a hard money basis in its ordinary business the Philadelphia Press publishes several columns of wholesale prices in the markets of the city in January, April and August of 1860 and the corresponding months of 1875. The following are the prices of some of the most important commodities, in August, 1860 and August 1875

Articles	1860	1875
Flour per bbl	$ [illegible] 08	$ 5 [illegible]
Wheat per bushel	1 36	1 48
Pork per bbl	1 [illegible]	18 75
Sugar per 100 lbs	7 00	[illegible]
Beans per 100 lbs	6 88	5 50
Fish per barrel	9 37	10 25
Cotton per lb	[illegible]	15
Coal per ton	8 00	5 04

At the date of the quotations for 1875 gold was at a premium of about 14. A comparison of the figures above with allowance of this premium will show that goods are selling in 1875 at about the same rates in gold as in 1860, from which the Press reasons that we have got down to the old basis. We have before us a report from the United States Bureau of Statistics on the same subject which goes deeper into the question of relative values, taking into account the rates of wages as well as the market price of commodities, which is the only way in which any reliable conclusion can be reached. All merchantable commodities being the product of labor the value of money, that is its purchasing power, is at last merely its power to procure labor. This is the ultimate and final measure of all values. The report referred to does not trace the fluctuations of wages back so far as 1860, nor farther than 1870. So the comparison with the figures of the Press, if otherwise possible, we should have to omit for want of data. But another and more serious difficulty has to be encountered in instituting such a comparison. Different classes of labor have different values the range between the lowest and the highest leaving out the non productive classes being many times as great as the lowest rates. Before a reliable comparison can be made, therefore it would be necessary to know the fluctuations in the proportionate amount of each class of labor demanded in the business of the country. Besides the rates of wages in different localities fluctuate more than the prices of the commodities to be set over against labor. In one place labor costs twice or thrice as much as labor of the same class in another place.

Thus it is impossible to solve the question how nearly we have come to getting down to "hard pan" by any comparison of market values alone, and that when we endeavor to reach a solution through an examination of the whole subject of the interchange of labor and money, we find the way beset with so many difficulties, so many conditions involved in the problem as to make the effort unavailing for any result of practical utility.

THE BROOKLYN ULCER

By reference to the telegraphic columns it will be seen that the Beecher Tilton scandal has broken out in a new place as well as ulcerated again in one of the old places. The animus that inspired Mrs Moulton's extraordinary defense to the charge of absenteeism, which came up in the business meeting of Plymouth it is not difficult to perceive. Under the guise of a vindication of herself against the charge of being unnecessarily absent from church service—which is just no charge at all except so far as it forms technical ground of cutting off a member who is already off for all practical purposes—she seeks to reopen the fountain of filth. People will have their own opinions as to the truth of the charges against Beecher, and there is not the slightest danger that there is not a sufficient number of candid and careful persons who will always believe Mrs Moulton knows just what she says she knows about the Plymouth preacher, but the number is far less who will say her defense to the charge of absenteeism was in good taste, or even excusable. If she felt disposed to resist the proceeding to have her name dropped from the roll of membership—which would be absurd in itself, since she had already practically dropped herself from the roll—she could have done so in some general and not in delicate language. There was no occasion for the indecent loudness of her reply to the summons. However, the part Gen Pryor took in the performance suggests at once the explanation of both its matter, and its manner.

But this wretched rottenness, as remarked above, seems to have festered in an entirely new place. It was not enough that the criminal courts, and the civil courts and the Plymouth Church courts and the great company of lewd minded social reformers should have given their imprimatur to the feculent budget and the Congregational Association of New York and Brooklyn must needs institute such proceedings as would give them a show to do their part in the work of befouling the moral atmosphere. They are afraid bless their pure hearts that it will contaminate them to hold with Beecher's church even the ordinary relations of members of the same denomination but of different congregations. Well, their extreme caution may be right enough. Some people are in constant danger of being corrupted. But is Beecher the only sepulchre in the association, or merely the only one that is not whited to the point of complete success? The members of that association for aught we know are as pure as Diana, but whenever we see such immense straining at a gnat we involuntarily cast about for the traces of the camel they have been swallowing. Let it once be understood that only they who could show themselves without sin should cast stones at Beecher or transpose the wording, if you choose and a great many of the prudes who are so extremely anxious to reopen the floodgates of uncleanness would be about as anxious to keep them shut down. The world has had investigations enough on this Brooklyn scandal certainly enough, unless they were concluded in a manner indicating a desire to discover the truth and not to hide it. Let us have peace.

CONFIDENCE AS CURRENCY

One of the most important points in the argument against inflation, says the New York Times and one we think that is conclusively demonstrated is the disastrous effect which that scheme if carried out would produce upon business confidence. In connection with this point there is a topic that has, perhaps, received less attention than it deserves. We refer to the manner in which well founded business confidence is in many cases, a substitute for money and often a substitute that affords facilities for business which the money itself would not supply. To give an example of what we mean: if for all the articles of traffic that pass from here to Chicago, the full value in money had to be brought or sent to New York and a similar process gone through with in regard to all that are carried in the opposite direction it is very obvious that it would take a great deal more money to transact the business between the two cities than it does now. It is equally evident that what principally obviates this necessity is business confidence in one form or another. What for instance, would drafts and checks be good for if this confidence was annihilated? Simply between these two cities without saying anything about the rest of the country this confidence undoubtedly supplies the place of millions of dollars that would be needed in case it did not exist, if, indeed, we can imagine the possibility of carrying on, under such circumstances, the present amount of trade at all.

Well founded business confidence constitutes of itself an inestimably valuable kind of currency. Where this value is from any cause materially impaired, there is no such thing possible as a sufficiency of money for the business of the country for money alone will not answer the needed purpose. An lone of the essential requisites of this confidence is that the figures in account books should have some definite meaning. The question what is indicated by the word "dollar" needs a more satisfactory answer than that of the inflationist, "A dollar is a dollar." One of the most important qualifications of a good book keeper is, as everybody knows, that he should write a legible hand. But no scratch that pretended to be writing at all could be more indistinct and confusing than the schemes of the inflationists would render the entries of the best penman that ever exerted his skill over the pages of a ledger. Items that cannot be easily read are troublesome, no doubt, but they are not so bad as those that mean nothing in particular when they are read.

There appears to be ground for the rumors of possible intervention by the United States in the Cuban rebellion. Some days since the cable said Minister Cushing had notified the Spanish government that unless the rebellion should be suppressed by the first of January next our government would consider that the insurgents had made good their claim to recognition by demonstrating their ability to maintain their independence. Following that dispatch came another to the effect that the proceedings by Mr Cushing had been overdrawn, but not denying that a communication had been made to the Spanish government on the subject of Cuban affairs. And now comes a statement that measures are taking by the Spanish authorities to secure material aid from this country on Havana purchases in order to enable the government to prosecute the war with greater vigor and the reason assigned for this is the fear of American interference.

Mr Backenstos was born April 21 1853 and died November 4 1875. At the age of fifteen he graduated with credit from the Portland Academy and the day after doing so was appointed to the position of Deputy Clerk for Multnomah county. This situation he filled with honor for about one year and a half when he resigned it to accept a clerk in the mercantile house of Messrs Corbett Failing & Co which he retained up to the time of his decease. "ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?"

GILROY March 1, 1875

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN. In an experience of three years with the Averill Chemical Paint more than one half the jobs have chalked, peeled or cracked off notwithstanding the Paint was warranted to do neither and out of sixteen failures, the California Chemical Paint Company have refused to furnish Paint to repaint but six of the sixteen. I refer to the following houses that have cracked peeled and chalked off in this place: James Corey, [illegible] C Morey M D, Thomas Darrough, F J Bryant, F H Farmer, Frank Oldham, J H Trickey, C W [illegible], Thomas Lee, P Ball, D Whitney, William Wilson, J M Finlast, R B [illegible], [illegible] A Baxter, Music Hall, Catholic Church, and I might mention many more.

2 POST ST SAN FRANCISCO Sept 11 1874

To Proprietors Chemical Paint Company—Gents: I had my house in Oakland painted with your paint. It was warranted to be good and satisfactory in every respect. I was obliged to have the third coat put on to make it look as if it had been really painted and even then I think one good coat of Lead Paint would have given the house a better appearance. I think you ought to make up to me the loss I sustained besides the annoyance I felt in knowing that an inferior article had been put on when a No 1 article had been promised. Hoping to hear from you soon on the subject I remain,

Yours resp'y, DR HENRY KNOX

GILROY, Sept 4 1875

To whom it may concern. Seeing in various papers that the California Chemical Paint Company continue to deceive people by saying that the Averill Paint will neither peel crack nor chalk off I deem it my duty to say that my house painted with the above named paint in the fall of 1873 failed in less than eighteen months after being painted by peeling cracking and chalking off in the worst manner imaginable. I also observe that the company have my name in their printed matter as reference. This was done without my knowledge or consent.

To whom it may concern. My house painted with the Averill Chemical Paint in June, 1873 failed in a little over one year after being painted by chalking peeling washing and changing color some light color some dark. The California Chemical Paint Company are knowing to this and yet continue to deceive the public by saying that the Averill Paint will not peel crack nor chalk.

To whom it may concern. My house painted with the Averill Chemical Paint manufactured by the California Chemical Paint Company of San Francisco about two years ago failed in less than one year after it was painted by chalking off and changing color and I had a portion of it repainted.

To whom it may concern. I had my fence painted in the fall of 1873 with the Averill Chemical Paint, which was represented not to chalk peel or crack off but it chalked off in three months after it was painted.

Gentlemen: I have used and sold the Rubber Paint in this city during the last four years. We have about one hundred buildings painted with the Rubber Paint. Among the prominent ones are the State Normal School, Gates Institute, City Market, the residence of Josiah Belden, J W Hinds President Gold Note Bank, J R Arquello Santa Clara etc. It has never failed to give satisfaction with a test of from one to four years so that its durability has been well tested. My sales last year were nearly five thousand gallons.

Pacific Rubber Paint Company—Gentlemen: I have used your Rubber Paint on my yacht thus far the action of the water has had no effect upon it so far as my experience goes the Rubber Paint is the best paint ever used for painting vessels especially in salt water. It adheres firmly to the wood does not peel and retains its gloss.

CITY.

DEATH OF C A BACKENSTOS.—After a painful and somewhat protracted illness Mr Chas A. Backenstos departed this life at an early hour yesterday morning, at his home. Some weeks ago deceased contracted a very severe cold which, settling on his lungs, soon brought on several severe attacks of hemorrhage. Consumption, that insidious and fell destroyer, soon seated itself in the system, and soon carried the unfortunate young man beyond the power of human skill. Surrounded by the sorrowing members of his family and sympathizing friends, Charles A. Backenstos quietly and tranquilly passed away from the scenes of mortal life to a higher and better world. Mr Backenstos was employed for some time in the county clerk's office during the administration of Mr C W. Parrish in which capacity he showed himself to be a competent and faithful assistant. For the past three years he has held a position as assistant book keeper in the extensive hardware house of Messrs. Corbett, Failing & Co. He was held in high esteem by his employers for his care and correctness, as well as for his industrious and exemplary habits. It is a duty, inexpressibly sad, to announce the death of one so young, so buoyant and so full of hope as was our friend. Just entering the threshold of manhood, life with all its promises and prospects had opened its inviting pathway to him; but death came and cut him down ere the flowers of youth had ceased to blossom only from the cold and cheerless grave can come to sorrowing kindred and friends remembrance of the many noble qualities of heart and mind, of a loving, generous brother, and a genial companion and true friend.

CHINESE ESCULAPIUS IN TROUBLE.—The case of Wong Sing, a Chinese physician, who was a few days since, came up in the police court yesterday morning, but was continued. The circumstances of the case are as follows: Some time since Wong Sing borrowed a sum of money from Messrs DeLashmutt & Co, brokers, which he was unable to repay when the note fell due. Suit was commenced, judgment obtained and execution issued against the vender of nostrums. Wong Sing's whole apothecary shop was attached, the door nailed up, and the premises placed under strict surveillance of a constable. The latter engaged one of the policemen to watch the building while making his regular rounds and see that the premises were not disturbed. A few nights since the officer observed a light in the interior of the shop through a window. Thinking it very strange he entered the door and observed Wong Sing ransacking the office. He arrested him at once and marched the doctor (?) off down to the city jail. It seems that a considerable quantity of opium was stored away in the office, and it was for this valuable drug that Wong Sing was searching when detected by the officer. He had torn off a plank in the rear portion of the building, through which his symmetrical (?) form was insinuated. The case will probably come up for trial to-day.

PASSENGERS.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the steamer John L. Stephens sailed from this port for San Francisco, carrying hence the following passengers. W. H. Trotter, Mrs W. H. Trotter, J P. Magruder, S B Hendee, Mattie Campbell, Miss Anna Tuck, Miss [illegible], Mr, Mrs. Dr. J B. McCurdy, B. Levy, D Thomson, Jas. O Barrows, Wm Clark, J [illegible], M. N Wheeler, Miss Burdell, T. [illegible], W W Stockton, Ensley Stockton [illegible] and wife, B. L Morrison, Dr. J L. [illegible], C. Henrichsen, W. W. Shaw, C. Dell, W Barrett, H. Arrowsmith, W. J. McC[illegible], Jas. Healey, M. Lichenstein, Miss M. Constable, Mrs. Haines and child, Mrs [illegible] and two children, J. N Edwards, Jas [illegible], M. G Jacobs, Jas A. Henderson and wife, E. N Taylor, Capt. B B. Biddle, J [illegible], wife and child, Mrs Mary Glenn, R [illegible], Mrs. Humphryville and son, H C [illegible], J. McClung, E. C. Good, T. Mason, G W. Emms, J. W. Moreland, Mrs D B [illegible], J. J. Blswell, wife and child, Mrs T. A. During, sister and two children, M C [illegible] and wife, T. J Spratt, J S Cobo, [illegible], Mrs. T. P Sheridan, R. S [illegible], W. H. Queen, Wm. E. Sulran, J F [illegible], W. H. Haywood, Chas. Husselman, Wells Fargo & Co's m[illegible] nger and 30 in the [illegible].

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY.—Chief Lappeus [illegible] from Sheriff Shaw, of [illegible] yesterday, just prior to the [illegible] the steamer, directing him to arrest [illegible] a young man named Geo F Crawford. Officer McCoy was sent down to the [illegible] a few minutes previous to the sailing [illegible] and arrested the young man [illegible] had purchased a ticket and was intending to leave for San Francisco. The dispatch stated that he is charged with larceny, [illegible] that the stolen property was in his trunk. The steamer was preparing to [illegible] out from the wharf just as McCoy [illegible] the arrest, and it was impossible to secure the trunk which was on board and [illegible] under a large amount of heavy [illegible]. McCoy took Crawford's check, which he gave to the porter and instructed him to bring the trunk back on the return trip of the steamer. It is not stated what Crawford is charged with stealing or the value. Last evening officer and prisoner went up to Salem on the express train. Crawford has [illegible] in this city for some months, during which time he was employed as barkeeper. Some weeks ago he went to Salem and has been engaged there at work. He has heretofore borne a good reputation.

RANGE BEACONS.—[illegible] Buchanan went down the river yesterday [illegible] to Columbia City for the purpose of making some needed repairs to the range beacons located at that [illegible]. One of these beacons has got out of [illegible] and requires attention. These beacons [illegible] said to be of invaluable service to the [illegible] and sailing vessels which ascend and [illegible] the river, and should be maintained for their value to the shipping interests of Portland. Vessels which happen to pass [illegible] City at night can easily follow the channel at that point by simply keeping in range of the lights. If no lights were provided, in most instances the vessels would have to lie until favored with the light of day before venturing to pass that point.

MARRIED.—Charles A Ball, Esq., a well-known member of the legal fraternity in this city, was united in the sacred relationship of marriage to Mrs. Melissa Westfall, a few days since. Soon after the ceremony, the happy couple started for Albany on a hymeneal tour. Charles scarcely afforded his friends [illegible] opportunity to congratulate him on his fortunate acquisition of a charming life-companion before departing. On his return, it will not be too late for his numerous friends to wish him all manner of prosperity. Meanwhile we will improve the present opportunity and use the [illegible] typed phrase so often but not inappropriately employed in wishing him an "unruffled sea over which to sail during the voyage of life."

FIRST QUARTER ENDED.—The Bishop Scott Grammar School comes to the end of its first quarter next Tuesday. Monday and Tuesday will be devoted to a written examination of the pupils in all studies of the past ten weeks. Wednesday, the tenth inst., the work of the ensuing quarter will be begun. We are glad to hear of the prosperity of this institution of sound learning. Boys are joining the several classes nearly every week. Two arrived on the last steamer from San Francisco to enter the boarding department. One of these is a son of a pupil of the head master. He is sent to Mr. Burton for special training that he may enter some Eastern college next year. A high compliment to our Oregon school.

LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.—The Liberal Association, at their regular meeting to-morrow, will discuss the question "Resolved that the pre-eminence of the English and American people is not owing to their Bible founded religions." All are invited to attend and participate. On Tuesday evening they purpose to give another grand ball, the proceeds of which are to be applied to the furnishing of a free Sunday school reading room and Liberal library.

TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED.—Mr Buchanan, who is superintending the operations of the [illegible], informs us that owing to the high stage of water in the Wallamet he has been compelled to suspend work at Postoffice bar for a few days. When the water falls operations will be resumed and continued until high water again stops the work.

TO THE PENITENTIARY.—Sheriff Jeffery will start for Salem this morning with Louis Pillsbury, the young man who has been convicted of forgery and sentenced to the penitentiary for the period of two years. Young Pillsbury is most respectably connected in the East, and an effort will doubtless be made to invoke executive clemency in his behalf. His father is superintendent of the State penitentiary of New York, at Albany, and an uncle has charge of the penitentiary in the State of Connecticut. Both the father and uncle of the wayward young man are spoken of in the highest terms, and are represented to be gentlemen of unimpeachable integrity and occupy elevated social positions.

CLEAN UP.—We are requested by the street commissioner, Mr Davis, to remind persons that it is eminently proper now to clean the streets in front of their residences and places of business. In addition to the mud and other filth, which accumulate at this season of the year, the leaves which are shed by the ornamental trees render the streets and side walks in a bad condition. As soon as the foliage has been shed, the commissioner desires every person to clean up without delay. His recommendation should be observed, and much trouble may thus be avoided.

ONE CIPHER TOO MANY.—Figures won't lie, but they will sometimes make one say what is not true. For instance. In our report of the county court proceedings yesterday, we stated that the bond required in a certain case was fixed at $1,000, whereas it should have been $100. Only one cipher too many. The gentlemen who are required to execute the undertaking will doubtless object more seriously to that other nought than any one else.

HORSES SHIPPED.—Three trotting horses, two of which have made very creditable records in this State, were shipped yesterday on the steamer for California. These animals are Bellflower owned by Mr. Glassford, of Walla Walla, Portland Belle and Sally-Come-Up, owned by Mr C P Bacon. The latter animal was recently purchased of Mr S. D Smith by Mr Bacon.

UMATILLA STAGE ROBBERY.—The following dispatch was received here yesterday from Umatilla: "The examination of the parties for robbing the stage, now going on at Pendleton, was not finished when the stage passed through there. The driver who was on the stage when robbed came in last night. He says he believes the men on trial are the right ones.

LIST OF LETTERS.—The following letters remain uncalled for in Wells, Fargo & Co's express office in this city: Sarah Brandt, T Buckley, Lena Crowne, J C Caldwell, C Deusch, Charles Dupont, H. Henderson, Lillie Hadlock, S. E Josephi, C. S. Kulnow, C. E. Riggs, Wm Schade, Wm Trimble.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—At a late meeting of the Lecticonian Club, the following officers were elected for the ensuing season. President, W. G Steel, vice president, W H Dufur, secretary, Oscar Heintz, treasurer, J. D. Hiloox.

DEDICATION BALL.—Elsewhere is published the announcement of the ball to be given by Multnomah Tribe, No. 3, I. O R M, at their wigwam, Philharmonic hall, on the 25th inst. The committees have been appointed.

ROSEBURG ITEMS.

Under date of November 4th, "Old Hundred" sends us the following from Roseburg:

Our grain warehouses are still full of wheat waiting shipment. Business is quite brisk.

L. F Lane, congressman elect, is about town looking as happy as any other man would with Washington in view.

This city is improving very fast. There have been several fine dwelling houses put up here this summer and several new business houses, there is also a fine church going up.

The farmers are all busy plowing and seeding and from present prospects there will be twice as many acres sown this fall than any year before. Stock men are also happy, as the grass has again started and the hills are green again.

We have had a very severe rain storm for the last few days, but it is again clear, and to-day is as pleasant as a mid summer day. The stages are one and a half days behind time, but I think they will be able to make time again in a few days, as the roads are drying up very fast.

Two men calling themselves Mitchell and Jones hired horses of Wright & Carlin, livery men, here to be gone for a few hours. Failing to return the second day Deputy Sheriff Hogan followed them south of Canyonville and arrested them. They are now boarding at the sheriff's hotel at the county expense.

The Roseburg Water Ditch Company have surveyed their ditch, and are making arrangements to complete it this winter. It is to start four miles above Roseburg, from the South Umpqua river, running between the city and the railroad track. As soon as it is completed they propose to build a flouring mill, also a woolen factory.

Quite an accident happened here, Tuesday last, to a man by the name of R. Traxell, who was hitching up his team, when one of the horses kicked him in the face, smashing his nose and face in a frightful manner. He was taken into Dr Woodruff's office. Drs Woodruff and Hamilton removed some of the bones and dressed his wounds. He is now doing as well as could be expected.

FIRE MATTERS.

No fire alarms since last week.

The big bell is tapped three times at noon, daily, as usual.

The bell tower is to have a new tin roof, the old one being out of order.

A step ladder is to be constructed to the woodshed of Tiger's house.

Several of the companies have increased their membership very much lately.

The secretary of Mt Hood company is making inquiry about apparatus for that organization.

The hose carriages for Willamette and Protection companies—ordered early last spring—not finished yet.

F M Manning, city marshal of East Portland, is president of Mount Hood fire company, of that place.

Four candidates are out for the principal offices at the election next month, viz. Mr J H Lyon, of No 1 and Mr A. B. Hallock, of No 2 (present incumbent) for chief engineer. W A. Hart, of No 3 and Jos J Meagher of No 5, for assistant engineer. The two latter hold the positions of first and second assistants at present.

THE STAGE.

The Phelps troupe are in Victoria.

J Al Sawtelle is at the California Theater this week, where Joe Murphy is playing an engagement.

Madame Anna Bishop has finished her Australian tour, and returned to England by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

J O. Barrows and R C. White, both prominently known in this city as members of the dramatic profession, sailed on the steamer for San Francisco. The latter gentleman will endeavor to engage a company for the New Market Theater during his absence.

Willie Simms, the comedian who was playing at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, at the time of the big fire, lost all his trunks, in one of which was $580 in coin, containing a fine Shakespearean wardrobe, worth $4,000. He had it insured, but by some slip in the policy it is pronounced worthless. Simms had one of his hands burned so badly, also that the physicians tell him he will lose the use of it.

BRIEF NOTES.

Heavy rain storm last night.

Flooded streets and crossings.

A dark and stormy night was last.

Line down last night beyond Yreka.

Lecticonians will meet this evening at Nonpareil Hall.

Umbrellas and overcoats are comfortable appendages.

The storm last night will make lively work for the telegraph repairer.

The John L. Stephens carried away a large number of passengers yesterday.

AMUSEMENTS.

A wild and stormy night did not prevent a large audience from being present at the concert given at New Market Theater last evening by the McGibeny family, assisted by Profs. Bray and Roos. A most excellent programme was rendered, which, from the demonstrations of approbation, was highly relished by the audience. Particularization at this late hour is impossible, but suffice it to say the entire performance was creditable to all concerned. These popular concerts are to be repeated, we understand. On Sunday evening the usual Song Service will be given at New Market Theater.

Though they are not selling at cost, the prices at which Fishel & Roberts are offering goods is much lower than usual. This is accounted for from the fact that they are able to buy at lowest figures.

Call this afternoon or evening at Beck & Waldman's and buy one of those new suits for yourself or your boy. The firm are prepared to supply all. Interview them immediately.

Song service, Sunday, at 7 30, at the New Market Theater. The usual attractive programme will be presented. Contributions will be taken at the door from every person entering.

J. K. Gill & Co have just received "Chatterbox," "Nursery," "Little Wide Awake," "Peep Show" and all the popular juveniles for 1876.

After the storm drop in Fabre & Barnes' and try their a No 1 coffee.

Those lunches are sought for eagerly. Special cook engaged at A. E. Miller & Co's.

The Aurora Restaurant has been improved greatly within the past few days, through the efforts of fresco painters and other artists and presents a much more inviting appearance than formerly. The ladies' dining saloon is neat and attractive, and can be reached without any inconvenience. Messrs Rider & Hersey must be doing a large business. They deserve it all as they give thorough satisfaction to their numerous patrons. Be sure and call at the Aurora, Front and Alder streets.

EXTRAORDINARY OPPORTUNITY FOR THE RELIEF OF THE AFFLICTED.

The Surgeons of the National Surgical Institute located at Indianapolis Indiana, Pacific Branch 319 Bush street, San Francisco, have finally yielded to the many urgent appeals to visit Portland, Oregon, for the benefit of the people of Oregon and Washington Territory. Three or more of the surgeons will be at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Portland Oregon, on the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th of November 1875.

They will have with them a great amount of surgical apparatus, appliances, etc., and competent assistants and workmen to change, fit and make such apparatus as may be required. They will come specially prepared to treat all surgical cases. Paralysis, all kinds of Deformities of the Face, Spine and Limbs; Diseased Joints, Diseased Eyes, Catarrh, Private Diseases, Piles, Fistula, etc. On account of the great expense attending such a trip they will not make another, therefore all who wish to avail themselves of the advantages of the Institute, without the long journey to San Francisco or Indianapolis must do so at this time. No case will be undertaken without a fair hope of relief. It is needless to say that the institute is entirely responsible, and the largest and most popular of the kind in America, curing thousands annually. Remember the time and place, and come early. ☞ Send to the Institute for circular.

FOR THE LADIES.

The polonaise skirt and waist of several years back will, it is said, be revived this year.

The changes in bonnets and hats consist more in their trimmings and colors than in their shape.

Notwithstanding fringes and laces are so lavishly used, there is a fine style found in the new undertrimmed garments that make them very popular.

A new overskirt bears the suggestive title of "La Boiteuse" (the cripple). It is one-sided or rather made to look so, by being draped higher on the right side than on the left.

The latest fashion places ladies in scantier dresses than ever, some of the newest costumes shown resembling umbrella cases with trains and allowing no room for ever so small a tournure.

A heavy fabric, new this season, called "Snows of Spitzbergen," has brown and gray ground, regularly covered with white spots just like snow flakes. This is used only for jackets and costumes, and is forty inches wide.

Last year expensive cashmeres were not only half covered with jet, but the tiny jet beads were elaborately embroidered upon the material. This year jet is no longer to be seen. In this consists the extravagance of the age, the caprice of fashion.

Normandy ecru cashmere lace is superseding black lace as an ornament for bonnets, where it mingles with charming effect and contrast of creamy hue in and around feathers and loops of dark velvet. On felt hats and costumes it is also largely used.

Of all garments that have grown longer, cloaks show the most decided increase in length. The long pelisses and basquines, neatly fitted to the figure, are revived for cloth cloaks while long French sacques with loose backs are used for those of silk that are lined with fur.

Handsome jackets for autumn are navy blue, orain color, and deep prune cloth fan at the [illegible] trimmed with new Tuan braid which is interwoven with gold, silver and other threads in bright colors, corresponding to the tartan plaids. There are other broad loosely woven [illegible]ga loons, largely composed of gold and silver and steel threads.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

John Doe, drunk and disorderly, fined $5, paid and defendant discharged.

A man named Bishop, for being drunk and disorderly, was fined $5; committed to jail for 3 days.

The case against Jas Brodigan, charged with assaulting a Chinaman, was dismissed and the defendant discharged.

McMahan, a devotee of Bacchus, for a spree was fined $10 by the court, and failing to liquidate goes below for five days.

Andrew Glughan, for indulging too freely in malt beverage, was sent below for three days, and all because he was impecunious.

Mulligan (not the hero of the "Mulligan Guards") was arraigned upon a charge of being drunk, and sentenced to pay a fine of $5. He failed to show the required amount of "bullion," and joined his other friends below.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Drs Adams & Owens, First street, bet. Taylor and Yamhill, give medicated atomized vapor baths, which work wonders in curing rheumatism and other chronic diseases.

People will go where they can buy the cheapest. Then it is no wonder H. W. MONNASTES has such a run at his store. Housekeepers would do well to call and see his well assorted stock of Crockery and Glassware, Willow and Wooden Ware, Rodgers Brothers' Plated Ware, and a full line of House Furnishing Goods. Prices are such that our customers are well pleased. No. 129 First street, bet. Morrison and Yamhill.

Twenty thousand persons visited the State Fair, and the railroads and other modes of transportation were taxed to their utmost in carrying the immense outpouring of the people. A large proportion of these seekers for pleasure and profit visited the establishment of Beck & Waldman, First and Washington streets for the express purpose of buying from the immense stock of clothing displayed to the gaze of the public. The prices seemed to please all. Youths' clothing is a specialty at this house.

The Elegant Establishment of JOS KOHN, cor of First and Morrison streets, has been literally stuffed with fall and winter goods, which they are disposing of at a lively rate for the reason that Kohn has made some excellent selections and what is more the prices are ranging exceedingly low. When you want anything to please you in clothing no better chance to find it is offered than at Kohn's. Be sure and call when you find it necessary to purchase.

Enfeebling Pursuits.

Nature intended that we should use our legs freely, and revenges herself upon those who constantly sit at their daily avocations in doors by depriving them of that robust health which usually falls to the share of those who labor on foot in the open air and very frequently inflicts upon them diseases and premature infirmities which they might have avoided by a more active life. Persons who become enfeebled in consequence of sedentary habits or occupations cannot do better than to resort to a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a means of recovering lost strength. Nor should they postpone a recourse to this supreme tonic and preventive of physical decay longer than is absolutely necessary as weakness is too often the precursor of disease. The Bitters are also invaluable as a remedy for dyspepsia, constipation, intermittent fever, urinary and rheumatic complaints.

IMPORTANT.—Indorsed by the Medical profession. Dr WM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS cures Coughs, Colds, Consumption and all diseases of the Throat and Chest. DR TOWNSLEY'S TOOTHACHE ANODYNE cures in one MINUTE.

MR. DAYTON'S HOUSEKEEPER

WANTED—A housekeeper—no one but an elderly person, competent, and of the highest respectability need apply. Call between the hours of 1 and 4 Thursday April 2, at No —— Michigan avenue.

Kate Franklin read this in the paper which lay on the counter in the little grocery while waiting to have an ounce or two of tea done up and a roll of baker's bread.

She repeated the number of the house over to herself as she received the change from the grocer.

She prepared the tea after she returned to the little bare attic and ate her scanty meal mechanically. She forgot how unsatisfied her appetite still was in her busy thought.

A stranger in a strange place, successively she had tried to find a situation as a teacher, copyist, in a store, sewing. She had failed in the first three and was starving on the last.

She would apply for the place but she would need references. Only one person she knew in the whole great city of sufficient influence—Mrs. Davenport, the rich haughty step sister, who had ill treated her gentle mother while she lived, and hated Kate, herself.

Perhaps Kate thought she would permit her to refer to her because glad to have her descend to menial employment.

Kate was competent for the situation, for during her mother's long illness and her father's absence she had entire charge of their large family and splendid house.

But an "elderly woman." Now Kate was not an elderly woman, being only twenty, but she remembered with a sort of pleasure that in private theatricals, in happier days she had imitated the voice and assumed the character of an old woman with great success. She knew how to stain the skin to give an old appearance and she had in the bottom of a box some false gray hair and a muslin cap worn on one of those occasions. She did not need to look so very old—only to present a mature and matronly appearance.

Mr. Edward Dayton waited at home after his dinner to see his respondents to his advertisement. He was a handsome man not yet thirty with a grave, frank, good natured countenance.

He leaned back in a nonchalant way, his feet on another chair.

"There ought to be a Mrs. Dayton to manage these housekeeping matters. Well, there's time enough."

Two applicants were seen and dismissed in Mr. Dayton's gentlemanly way.

A third was ushered in. Mr. Dayton instinctively laid aside his cigar and placed a chair for his visitor.

The ladylikeness and propriety of her manner pleased him at once. "Fallen fortunes," he commented to himself.

She answered his questions readily but in few words.

"A silent woman—a good thing," was his inward remark.

"I think you will suit me. Mrs. —— what may I understand your name?"

"Franklin."

"Mrs. Franklin, you will be required to go out of town about seven miles to my country house, Oak Grove—in the town of Embury, on the Grand Central railroad. The salary I propose to pay is $600 per annum. Do my terms suit you?"

She answered quietly that they did.

"Then it is all settled. By the way I suppose you have references, though that is a mere matter of form."

The name of Davenport was given.

"Davenport? Robert Davenport? I know them. All right. If convenient, you will please go to-morrow, Mrs. Franklin, or the next day. I shall not come till the middle of next week, and probably bring a friend or two with me. Have the chambers in the center and wings prepared, if you please. The housekeeper there now will not leave until Saturday. She will show you around."

"Is Mrs. —— is your wife there, or to go soon?"

He laughed.

"Mrs. Edward Dayton? No, she is not there, and I do not know of her going at present." Adding, more seriously, "I have not the pleasure, Mrs. Franklin, of having a wife," with a slight stress upon pleasure.

A vivid color came into the brown cheeks of the housekeeper, and her manner showed evident embarrassment.

"I thought—I believe—I cannot—" and stopped.

He did not notice it. His mind had already turned to other things. He rose.

"It's all settled, I believe. By the way"—his eyes falling on the rusty black dress—"you may like an advance as an evidence of the bargain. It is quite customary I believe to do so."

The housekeeper's hands closed on the fifty dollars that he gave her, and the words she would have said were left unuttered. She moved to the door. He opened it for her courteously.

"Good morning, madam."

"Good morning," she replied.

"I cannot starve. I must go. I can keep up my disguise," she murmured.

Mr. Dayton, accompanied by a friend, arrived at his country house the middle of the ensuing week. Everything within and without the house was in perfect order. If the new housekeeper had made a few mistakes at first they were soon rectified. Every room that she had touched showed a magical change.

Her predecessor had been one of the kind who believed in the sunlight never entering the rooms for fear of fading the carpets.

Mr. Dayton felt the change without knowing the reason of it. He looked around him with a satisfied air.

It was not possible to find fault with the variety and quality of the food placed before them nor the manner of its being served, and the table appointments were perfect, and Mr. Dayton congratulated himself upon having such a jewel of a housewife.

The weeks passed and a holiday came. Dayton had gone to town the day previous to remain the rest of the week. The housekeeper had given permission to the servants to go also. She felt a welcome relief to have the day to herself. She locked the doors carefully after the last servant. She would have no dinner, only lunch. She had almost forgotten her real character in that which she had assumed, but to-day she could be herself without fear of intrusion or discovery.

She laid aside her cap and gray dresses—washed the stain from her skin—arranged her luxuriant hair in becoming curls and donned a pretty, fresh muslin which fitted well the slight graceful figure. This done she entered the parlor and stood before the mirror—as attractive a figure as one would often see.

"Truly, I have forgotten my own looks! I am Kate Franklin after all!" she said.

Removed from her long restraint her spirits rebounded. She felt gay, light-hearted and like committing any foolish [illegible].

"Mrs. Franklin," she said in the mincing, affected tones of an [illegible], "it would be an inexpressible pleasure to hear the music of that long silent voice."

"It would be a great pity to deprive you of it, then," she answered in her natural voice, "and myself also," she added, and going to the piano she opened it and then she sung song after song in a sweet clear cultivated voice. She chose at first the brilliant and triumphant, then the sad and plaintive succeeded. There were tears in her eyes when she rose. But to-day her moods were many.

"Mrs. Franklin, who is playing [illegible]" she asked, in excellent imitation of Mr. Dayton's voice.

"It is only I, sir, dusting the keys. They need dusting so often," she replied in Mrs. Franklin's meager tones; and she dusted them vigorously with her pocket handkerchief.

"Ah me!" she said, "now what other foolish thing shall I do to prove to myself that I am not an elderly housekeeper, but a young girl, who by virtue of her age should be gay by right of birth, wealth and of consideration visited and visiting, as Mr. Dayton's lady visits and is visited. He is noble, good and handsome," she said, with a sigh. "She will be happy. How gracefully she danced here at the party the other evening, when the old housekeeper was permitted to look on. She looks good and amiable too. Mr. Dayton danced with her three times. I wonder if I have forgotten how to dance," and humming an air she floated gracefully about the room.

She stopped breathless, her cheeks brilliant from the exercise, her splendid hair disarranged.

"I believe I feel like stiff old Mrs. Franklin, with whom dancing does not agree.

"One more song by that heavenly voice, Mrs. Franklin, and I shall go away dreaming I have heard angels sing," in the ludicrously affected voice she had before imitated.

"Ah!" she laughed, yet half sadly, "the compliments poor old housekeeper Franklin receives. I hope won't quite spoil her and turn her silly old head."

She sat down again at the piano and sang "Home, Sweet Home," and then played one of Beethoven's grandest, most solemn pieces.

She rose and closed the piano.

The carnival is ended. Kate Franklin disappears from the scene, and Madam Franklin enters.

Neither Mr. Dayton nor the servants would have suspected from the placid and dignified deportment of the housekeeper when they returned at evening of what strange freaks she had been guilty. The housekeeper as usual when Mr. Dayton was alone sat at the table. It had commenced to rain violently and the weather had grown suddenly cold.

Mr. Dayton as he had [illegible] occasionally invited her to the library where a cheerful fire burned in the grate. He read the letters and papers which he had brought with him from town while she knitted.

An hour or more passed in silence, indeed the housekeeper seldom spoke except when asked a question. At length Mr. Dayton looked up to her and said abruptly:

"Yours must be a lonely life, madam. If it is not a painful subject may I ask how long since you lost your husband?"

Two hands suspended their employment—two eyes looked up to him with an alarmed expression. In his serious, sympathetic countenance there was nothing to frighten or embarrass, but the red grew deeper on her brown cheek.

"It is a painful subject," she said at last, faltering. "If you will please excuse me."

One morning he was speaking of the great loss to children in being deprived of their parents.

"I never knew a mother," he said. "She died before my earliest recollection. I believe that, man as I am, if I had a mother I should go to her with all my griefs as a little child would. I have sometimes thought of asking you to act as mother in the quiet evenings when I have longed to confide in some one. My mother would have been about your age, I think."

Again there was a vivid color in the cheeks of the housekeeper such as is rarely seen in the aged, but it was accompanied by a quiver in the mouth and ended in a cough, but both mouth and cheeks were quickly covered with a handkerchief and quite a violent fit of coughing succeeded.

Mr. Dayton however did not seem to notice, though he had given her one curious glance, instantly withdrawn, and he continued:

"For instance—respecting matrimony—whose advice is of so much value as a mother's? Who so quick to see through character and make a good selection? Had you a son, whom about here would you select for a daughter in law, Mrs. Franklin?"

"I am not acquainted with any of the young ladies, Mr. Dayton," she answered.

"True, but you have seen them all, and are, I should judge, a good discerner of character from observation. Whom would you select from those you have seen?" he persisted.

She reddened and paled.

"I have heard the Misses Grandison highly spoken of. Their appearance would seem to prove the truth. I doubt not that you agree with me," she replied quietly.

It was now his turn to color, which he did slightly.

"I do agree with you," he answered emphatically.

It was late in September. Mr. Dayton and the housekeeper were both in the parlor. He had been unusually grave all day. It seemed to the housekeeper that his manner had changed toward her.

"I have a few questions to ask if you will permit me, Mrs. Franklin?"

She felt instinctive alarm at his tone.

"Certainly," with an effort.

There was an ominous pause.

"I have been told," said he, "that Miss Kate Franklin, a young lady, by disguising herself, palmed herself off upon me for several months as an elderly lady. Is there any truth in the story?"—looking searchingly at her.

She started to her feet, then trembling sank back into a chair.

"Yes, it is true," she murmured falteringly.

"I confess I fail to see for what object. My heart you could hardly expect to gain in that character."

"Your heart," she repeated scornfully. "I had no such laudable ambition. I had never seen or heard of you till I saw your advertisement. Would you like to know for what purpose I took upon me the disguise so repugnant? You shall—to save myself from starvation! I had eaten but one meal a day for a week when I applied to you, and was sick with hunger then. My money was all gone, except a few pennies, with which to buy a roll of bread for the next day's meal, and had no more, for I had been refused further sewing. But why should you find fault?"—her pride rising. "What matters it if I were Miss or Mrs. Franklin, old or young, if I fulfilled the duties I undertook? Have I not taken good care of your house? Have I not made you comfortable? If I have not, deduct from this quarter's salary which you paid this morning whatever you like."

"I have no fault to find, except for placing yourself and me in an awkward position should this become known."

Waves of color mounted to the poor housekeeper's temples. "I thought—I meant that no one should know, least of all you—besides I thought when I engaged to come that you were married. Oh, what shall I do?" and she burst into a passion of tears.

Mr. Dayton's manner changed.

"Kate! Kate! I did not mean to distress you. Nobody knows but me—nobody shall know." And he soothed her tenderly. "Kate, look up. I love you with all my heart. I want you to be my little housekeeper—my wife—always. Kate, what do you say?"—taking her in his arms and laying his cheek against hers. "My own Kate, is it not?"

She murmured something between her sobs that she must go away this minute.

"Nonsense, darling! Haven't you been here for months? What difference can a day longer make? You are safe with me, Kate. Oh, because I know you are Miss Franklin will you give me the inexpressible pleasure of hearing from that long silent voice? Oh, Katie, you bewitched me that day! I am afraid you will bewitch me always. But Katie, let's take off these trappings"—untying her cap and removing her gray hair, and with this action down fell the wealth of brown tresses.

"Oh, Mr. Dayton, you were not—surely you were not home that day?"—looking up covered with confusion.

"Yes, Mr. Dayton was in the library," with an accent on his name which Kate understood.

"O, Edward! and you teased me with all these foolish questions when you knew?"

"Yes, my Kate, why not?"

"But you looked so innocent?"

He laughed.

"I shall soon, I hope, have somebody if not a mother to confide in, and Kate it is a [illegible] duty and pleasure to give you a husband [illegible] fit for you to answer without so much hesitation when he is inquired after."

"You are too generous."

"I am all but too generous," he said earnestly, "when I have had the precious gift of your love. Kate, I bless forever the day that I first engaged my housekeeper."
